

Mar 02,
2020

DAB Detection of Biocytin Labeled Tissue

Allen Institute for Brain Science¹

¹Allen Institute

1 Works for me dx.doi.org/10.17504/protocols.io.bctbiwin

BICCN Allen Institute for Brain Science

Dillan Brown ⚡ 🍀

ABSTRACT

This protocol describes the process for diaminobenzidine (DAB) detection of biocytin filled cells. This protocol is optimized for use with brain slices cut at 350 μ m thick, in which cells are first filled with biocytin (i.e., post-electrophysiological recording), fixed in 4% PFA/2.5% glutaraldehyde, and transferred to PBS until ready to stain.

ATTACHMENTS

PF0285_DAB_Detection_Biocytin.docx

This is an open access protocol distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution License, which permits unrestricted use, distribution, and reproduction in any medium, provided the original author and source are credited